GE Talks On 'Dead Center'

Johnson Ready To Use Taft-Hartley Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations aimed at averting a General Electric Co. strike continue today in a pessimistic atmosphere. The talks were described by a special White House mediation panel as "dead center."

About 125,000 members of 11 unions are threatening to strike the huge company at 12:01 a. m. Monday.

Hospital Fund Tops $2 Million

Pledged Money Still Coming In

A total of almost $2 million has been received from pledges to the Memorial-Mercy Hospital Joint Building fund, according to a report by Elmer Cress, executive director.

With interest earned from investment of some of the money, the fund receipts already exceed the $2 million mark, he indicated.

An audit of the funds for the period from June 1, 1964 (inception date) to April 30, 1966, showed collection of pledges amounted to $1,835,773.94. Interest from investments added another $11,841.80 during that period.

Cress said that since the end of the audit period to Oct. 1, 1966, the fund office has received additional pledge payments of $160,646.66. Thus, through Oct. 1 fund receipts have reached $2,008,262.40.

FORECAST

The audit also states that if balances of all pledges are paid in full the total amount to be collected by the fund would be $4,723,333, excluding interest earned on investments.

Pledges for the construction of major additions to both Benton Harbor Mercy and St. Joseph Memorial hospitals are generally extended over a three-year period. Some pledges cover four years. The three-year pledge period runs until April 30, 1968, and four-year pledges go until the same date in 1969.

The audit, prepared by Herkner, Smith, Mitchell and Johnson, certified public accountants, has been submitted to the boards of trustees of the two hospitals and has received their approval and acceptance.

CONSTRUCTION PLANNED

Construction is expected to get underway at both hospitals early next year. Mercy hospital officials have indicated construction there will begin in either January or February.

The audit indicated $916,105.31 was disbursed from the joint fund to each of the hospital boards between June 1, 1965 and April 30, 1966. Cress added that another $78,846.30 has been disbursed to each board since the end of the audit period.

The fund office is located at 2724 Niles avenue, St. Joseph. Cress said payments on pledges should be directed to this office.

$500 Dog Missing In Benton

Benton township police are investigating the theft of a dog valued at $500.

Richard Hanner, 1042 Territorial road, Benton township, reported to police about noon yesterday that the animal, a tiny white toy poodle, was missing.

Hanner said he had left the dog, which answers to the name "Peanuts," tied in his yard. Someone either turned the dog loose or stole it, Hanner said. He told police the dog is worth $500.

M'Namara Says War Going Well

Defense Chief Winds Up Visit To Viet Nam

From Associated Press
U. S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, winding up his eighth visit to Viet Nam, said today the rate of progress in military operations during the past year "has exceeded our expectations."

"I never come here without being impressed by the morale and the performance of U. S. troops," he said.

He told newsmen he sees nothing that would indicate a substantial change in the rate of those military operations or deployment of U. S. forces in the months ahead.

McNamara, wearing khaki uniform-type shirts and pants during his visits to the field, said "military operations have progressed very satisfactorily during the past year."

Pressure on the Viet Cong has been greater than anticipated, he said. He explained that this pressure referred to casualties dealt to the enemy and their supplies, and their effect on Communist morale.

"Progress in the South Vietnamese economy has been more than we would have forecast a year ago," he added.

McNamara said the South Vietnamese program of pacification has proved sound. He said the leadership of this program is able but progress "has been slow indeed."

A Saigon newspaper reported the South Vietnamese government had uncovered a plot to assassinate McNamara during his current visit to Viet Nam, but there was no immediate confirmation. The Saigon Daily News, quoting "police sources," said several arrests had been made and "security officials were not unduly upset because of precautions that had been taken."

LANSING (AP) — A member of the State Board of Education asked Wednesday for a study on whether Michigan public schools could provide free textbooks at state expense.

Dr. Leon Fill said, "costly charges for books and instructional materials are a major burden on thousands of our low income families" and tend to defeat efforts "to raise the future economic and cultural well being of students of such families."

Big Bank Failure In Detroit

Competitor Taking Over

DETROIT (AP) — The Public Bank of Detroit, nine years old and more than $1 million in the red, collapsed Wednesday in one of the biggest bank failures since the Depression.

A secret, midnight meeting certified the demise of the faltering institution and stunned the 3,000 stockholders and President James H. McGuire alike.

The bank's directors scheduled a meeting for today amid reports that they would file a suit—but who the defendants will be remains to be seen.

The Bank of the Commonwealth immediately took over and backed the liabilities of the Public Bank.

State Banking Commissioner Charles D. Slay said the bank "simply owed more than it owned" because of "sabotage and conflict of interest" among its directors. He named no names.

McGuire got the news in a telephone call shortly after midnight. The stockholders—some of whom filed suits against the action late Wednesday—learned of it from news media.

CAUGHT SLEEPING
"I had no prior knowledge or I wouldn't have been in bed," said the 51-year-old McGuire, who took the helm of the Public Bank in February. "I was sound asleep."

The call came from general counsel of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC), which had been named by Wayne County (Detroit) Circuit Judge Benjamin Burdick as receiver. Burdick took the action at the request of Slay, who asked that the bank be put in involuntary receivership—meaning the bank's liabilities were bigger than its assets.

The FDIC, in turn, immediately took over the bank.

Plan Berrien Raises In Pay Budget Lists $50,000 For Increases

A $50,000 budget item will be earmarked for 1967 salary increases to roughly 160 Berrien county employees, and additional money is expected to be set aside for pay boosts to elected officials.

Salary committee chairman Brayton Yaw said the proposed pay increases to employees would average six or seven per cent. Increases for elected officials may go slightly higher, he added, but will come from a separate allocation.

Figures on elected official salary increases will be worked out this month, Yaw said. New legislation allows increases for officials during their terms of office, but figures must be submitted to the state before the end of October in order to take effect by Jan. 1.

No definite budget item has yet been set aside for pay boosts to officials, but Yaw indicated they will probably average at least as high as those to employees.

UNDECIDED
Elected officials include the sheriff, county clerk, register of deeds, prosecutor, drain commissioner, treasurer and probate judge. Yaw said his committee has not decided whether or not raises will go to all officials. The prosecutor is currently in process of receiving a graduated raise.

The employee raises, which should take effect Jan. 1, will be only the first step in the county's efforts to reach pay scales recommended in a recent job evaluation study by the Michigan Municipal League.

The study, Yaw said, recommended raises ranging from seven to more than 20 per cent in various departments. Salary and finance committee members found no particular fault with the study when it was handed to them last night, Yaw indicated, but felt it was just to much of a jolt to the budget to be full.

ENLISTMENTS UP

November Draft Call Slashed By 6,100

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon today cut the November draft call by 6,100 men to 37,600 and announced that 12,100 men will be inducted in December, the lowest total since March 1965.

A Defense Department announcement said the original draft call of 43,700 for November was being reduced because of "a greater than expected number of enlistments and reenlistments in recent months."

The December call involves only half the month.

The Pentagon said no men will be inducted between Dec. 16 and Jan. 1, 1967 because of the Christmas season.

ALL FOR ARMY
All inductees in November and December will go to the Army.

The Pentagon said it expects next January's request to the Selective Service to total about 33,500, based on the average taken in during the past six months.

He Hits Campaign Trail Hard

Speaks Out In Brooklyn On Backlash

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — President Johnson, campaigning in Delaware after voicing a plea against backlash in Brooklyn, N.Y., said today the nation could "fall apart and fall back and fail" if too many Republicans are elected in November.

Johnson, in remarks prepared for an outdoor rally here, said the Nov. 8 balloting will be fatal.

"Vote for the minority party — and we could fall apart and fall back and fail. Vote to return a strong Democratic Congress."

The President pictured the Democratic party as fulfilling its campaign promises in education, aid for the aged, antipoverty efforts, and attempts to build a lasting peace.

Addressing an Italian-American audience in Brooklyn Wednesday night — it was Columbus Day — Johnson reminded his listeners that "it hasn't been too many years since Italian-Americans have felt the raw pain of discrimination right here in America."

In his first appeal of this sort since "backlash" began figuring as an election-year issue, Johnson said:

"For those other Americans who are now feeling that need for fairness to all, regardless of religion, ancestry or race, I ask those of you who have crossed over the river to extend to them a helping hand."

The response was cheers from the dinner audience in Brooklyn's Hotel St. George.

Johnson stayed overnight in Manhattan so he could meet today with Prince Souvanna Phouma, neutralist prime minister of Laos.

En route back to Washington, where he holds an afternoon news conference, Johnson scheduled a campaign appearance at Wilmington, Del.

UNRESTRAINED
In four formal speeches in the New York area, the President was an unrestrained partisan — seeking Democratic votes in the Nov. 8 election — until his final appearance before the Italian-American Professional and Businessmen's Association.

Apart from the absence of straightaway party line appeals, the talk there was noteworthy for the folksiness of Johnson's bid for tolerance and for the fact that he toned down his prepared text.

As originally distributed to newsmen, the dinner text had Johnson saying:

UNSPOKEN WORDS
"It wasn't too long ago when, if someone spoke about 'crime in the streets,' he was thinking of an Italian."

"It wasn't too long ago when, if people talked about slums, they were referring to Italians — and to Irishmen and Jews as well."

He did not speak these passages.

But even as Johnson subtracted from the offerings of his speechwriters, he added a homely and rather emotional final point that seemed to hit a responsive chord with his audience.

Three Sundays ago, he recalled, he had been at his Texas ranch and daughter Luci Nugent, a Roman Catholic, "insisted I go to church with her very, very, very early in the morning."

He described the St. Francis (See back page sec. 1, col. 1)

National Newspaper Week

National Newspaper Week is an opportune time for the nation's press to rededicate itself to the eternal vigilance needed in any free society. It is not enough to remind oneself of the national heritage or that the Bill of Rights specifically reserves the right of free speech as a prerequisite for continued freedom.

Nor is it sufficient to point out that the founding fathers built into the Constitution every safeguard possible to prevent corrupt men from changing it into a worthless piece of paper. What is worthy of mention is that every free society before this one began its decline with a dissipation of free speech and a free press.

As long as the press remains adamant in its demand that the rights of the individual be protected against those who cite "changing times" as authority for creeping restrictions, this nation will remain free.

With the growth of government — all levels of government — there is a corresponding growth both in pressures to abandon guaranteed freedoms for the expediencies of the moment and the number of people who are susceptible to temptations. Once these freedoms are forsaken, however, they are never regained. Preventing these invasions is one of the prime responsibilities of the nation's newspapers.

Oppressive governments and tyrannical rulers understandably fear a free press, because it is the one instrument through which the public is informed of the wrong-doings of its servants and the rallying point from which those who have proved unfit for public office can be removed.

National Newspaper Week, then, is more than an opportunity for the Fourth Estate to snap its galluses, prop its feet on the desk and exhort readers on the importance of newspapers. It is a time for American newspapers to rededicate themselves to the principles which have made it possible for this Republic, although somewhat dented, to withstand the test of human frailties.

Finding Discoverers

Last year, Yale University announced that Lief Ericson had discovered the New World in the 11th century. It offered a map and other documents to support its case but supporters of Columbus were unimpressed.

Now another threat to the Genoese navigator's preeminence has appeared. A Welshman, Madoc, son of Owain, king of Gwynedd, arrived on these shores 300 years before Columbus, the world is informed by a Welsh journalist.

To back Madoc's proxy claim, contemporary accounts of his voyage are offered, including references to Madoc's two ships and to hill forts he constructed in Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and Kentucky. In addition, there is evidence purporting to show that some American Indians used Welsh words.

The Italian Historical Society of America was quick to challenge the Madoc story. It gives no weight to the evidence, questioning the Welsh journalist's sources as it did Yale's Vinland Map of Lief's voyages.

The society notes that new claims about the discovery of America crop up usually about Columbus Day and that despite them, the holiday keeps rolling along, just as the Nita, the Pinta and the Santa Maria did in 1492 when Columbus discovered America.

Undermining Confidence

In the not distant future, the following scene will take place in an American court room, if it has not occurred already. Judge and attorneys will spend hours determining whether the defendant's constitutional rights were respected at the time of his arrest and continuing through his confinement.

It will be asked whether the arresting officer read a prepared statement explaining all the avenues of conduct available to the suspect, before asking him anything about the crime. It will be asked whether the defendant was provided immediate counsel by the state or local judiciary, in the event he was unable to provide his own, and whether that attorney was present before any questions were asked.

After much more of the same, taking of testimony will begin. Before long a document or other piece of evidence will be submitted which was stolen, perhaps by a disgruntled employee. The court will accept it, and that document will turn out to be the principal evidence upon which the defendant is convicted.

The question of whether stolen evidence is admissible in court is not new, but more and more the courts are ruling any evidence with a bearing on the case, no matter how obtained (except a defendant's admission of guilt) should be considered.

The Federal Trade Commission adopted this policy the other day in accepting as evidence 46 documents stolen from the offices of a furniture company against which unfair pricing charges had been brought by the commission.

"To steal from one's neighbor is not to violate his constitutional rights." Or so the majority of the FTC commissioners said, although they did admit that if the government had stolen the documents it would have been guilty of illegal search and seizure.

The old question whether the end justifies the means will never be answered, among individuals, courts or nations, but the comment of dissenting Commissioner Philip Elman stands out in the FTC case. He spoke of "an obligation to maintain public confidence in the fairness and integrity of . . . processes and personnel."

Is it not that confidence which creates respect for law and order?

A Long Wait

When will the cost of living stop going up? That's a long-range question if there ever was one, and an answer has come — appropriately by long distance. In Paris, the 21-nation Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development has issued a guess that prices in the United States will level off by 1970.

The consumer price index, which measures the cost of living, has risen every year but two since 1939, and now stands 133 per cent higher than in that prewar year. Only seven of the annual fluctuations in this period have been less than 1 per cent, which is about as stable as prices can get.

In fact, Washington would be happy to boast once again — as it did in the early 1960s — that increases had remained within 1.5 per cent a year.

Female Stars

Another fortress of male supremacy is falling to the advances of womanhood. The House of Representatives has voted to remove a restriction on the appointment of women as generals and admirals.

The Senate probably will complete the surrender. Recognizing that it has been outmaneuvered, the Pentagon has supported the change, pointing out that many qualified women had to be retired prematurely because of limitations on advancement. Morale in the female officer corps also suffered, according to the Defense Department.

Doubtless women merit all the advancement they've achieved in what was once a man's world. Still, the feeling persists that the ladies should have stars in their eyes, and not on their steel bonnets.

It is a sign of old age if you can recall the days when all the people expected from their congressman was a packet of garden seeds which wouldn't grow.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A gentleman with very military bearing drove his car into a parking lot in Birmingham and looked about for the attendant. "Here I am, major," called a lad from the rear of the lot and ran up on the double. "I'm not a major," said the driver, descending from his car. "And I don't like to be called one." "Beg your pardon, colonel, no offense intended," the boy assured him. "I'm not a colonel, either," said the driver. "In fact, I have no title at all. I don't like titles. Now, how much will it cost me to park here for three hours?"

"There'll be no charge at all, sir," grinned the attendant. "You're the first big shot that ever drove into this lot who was just nobody at all—and it's a pleasure to serve you."

A very fat newcomer to San Francisco grumbled, "No other city ever bothered me—but these damnable hills are wearing me down." A native Chamber of Commerce booster cheered him with, "Ah, but you forget one wonderful thing about San Francisco, my friend. When you get weary you always

speaking of YOUR HEALTH

By Lester L. Coleman, M. D.

I have been taking about 30 tablets of aspirin a day for many months. I began taking them for a very stubborn cold. Now I can't seem to do without them. Is it possible to become addicted to aspirin and, if so, how does one go about getting off them?

Mrs. A.F., California

Dear Mrs. F.:

Aspirin is not an addictive drug. It cannot be classed with cocaine, heroin or the barbiturates, which are unquestionably habit forming.

You are not addicted to aspirin but rather dependent on them since they offer you some relief from discomfort or serve some psychological purpose.

There are many people who are considered "addictive personalities." They readily become dependent on substances as benign as salt, chocolate, soda pop, chewing gum and virtually anything they can eat or drink. These addictive people do not know moderation and consequently overdo every experience that crosses their path.

There is only one way to stop taking aspirin and that is to stop it entirely. If this is impossible it would be wise to consult your physician or a psychologist who might with psychological testing, learn why you should have become so dependent on such a safe, effective household remedy.

I have been terribly worried that I might have encephalitis. Is it a communicable disease? Can it cause dizziness and loss of equilibrium? What are the symptoms I should look for?

Dr. Coleman

Mrs. S.S., Nevada

Dear Mrs. S.: Your concern that you might have encephalitis is undoubtedly unfounded. The recent outbreak in Texas of this condition which is now under control may have added to your concern.

Symptoms are so often alike that any outline of them would only serve to further increase your anxiety.

The information you seek from me must at best be delayed far beyond the time for you to be relieved of this unnecessary fear. How much wiser it would be to seek relief from your fears by consultation with your own physician. It would spare you the unnecessary delay during which time your anxiety can only mount to the point that it will overwhelm you.

Encephalitis is an inflammation of the brain and its coverings. There are many varieties. Some are caused by a virus, others are due to an invader by bacteria.

The disease is sometimes called sleeping sickness, meningitis and by other names depending on its exact nature. Health officials set in motion immediate methods that prevent the disease from spreading. Modern antibiotics and cortisones have been effective in the control and cure of many cases of encephalitis.

Opening lead — ace of spades.

A careful declarer tries desperately to avoid putting all his eggs in one basket. He refuses to settle for a method of play that depends entirely on luck, when another method of play is available by which the luck factors is either reduced or eliminated.

Here is a typical case. Let's say you're declarer at five diamonds and West leads the ace and another spade, which you ruff. Offhand it looks as though the outcome depends on whether the clubs are divided 2-2. If they are, you lose one club trick and make the contract; if not, you lose two club tricks and go down one.

However, this would be an improper view to take. If you stop to think about the matter, it becomes evident that it is possible for the contract to be made even if the clubs are divided 3-1. Once you realize this, you naturally adapt your play to cover a 3-1 as well as a 2-2 division in clubs.

You draw two rounds of trumps, cash the A-K of hearts, and ruff a heart. At this point, instead of playing the ace and another club, you start the suit by leading a low club towards the ten.

Observe the effect of this play. If East wins with the queen, he must return a spade or a heart, and in either case, you discard a club from dummy as you ruff the return in your hand. The only tricks you lose are a spade and a club.

The same result occurs if West wins the first club lead (with the king). He must yield a ruff and discard or make a fatal club return.

Note that nothing is lost by this method of play if it turns out that the clubs are divided 2-2. However, the underlead of the ace assures the contract even if the clubs are divided 3-1, provided the singleton in either hand is the king, queen or jack.

B.H. Will Try Again On Bonds

Library Bids Are Sought Oct. 31

The Benton Harbor Library building authority has set Oct. 31 as the new date for opening of bids on a new $225,000 revenue bond issue.

A scheduled opening Tuesday did not produce a single bid for the bonds that the city wants to sell to finance construction of a new library. Financial houses apparently considered the specified maximum interest rate of 4.5 per cent was not high enough for the current money market.

City Manager Don Stewart said the issue will be re-advertised on advice of the library's bonding attorney who noted that fluctuations in interest rates could produce bidding within three weeks.

One problem appeared at least temporarily resolved as low construction bidders agreed to an extension to Nov. 1 before contracts are signed. The construction bids, opened Sept. 1, previously were valid for only 45 days.

The library building authority has voted to award contracts to low bidders but cannot sign contracts formally until the revenue bond issue is sold.

The city received good financial news from another source yesterday as the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development announced $236,000 has been released for improvements to Benton Harbor's water system. The grant was approved in August by the department.

The total project will cost more than $500,000 for a new 12-inch main on the south side of the city, a main running up Paw Paw avenue to connect with the present main that ends at the Whirlpool administrative center.

B.H. Girl, 4, Struck By Auto

A four-year-old Benton Harbor girl, Mary Ann Thomas, was injured last evening when she darted into the path of an auto driven on Paw Paw avenue at Rford street.

Mary Ann, the daughter of Mrs. Katie Thomas, 444 Paw Paw, was reported treated at Mercy hospital for bruises and released after the mishap at 5 p.m.

Patrolman Gerald Woofert reported that the driver of the auto, Christine Ruth Riehnart, 18, route 2, Bangor, told him the girl darted from behind a moving truck into the path of her car. The accident occurred near the Morton hill steps. No tickets were issued, Woofert said.

BOY TICKETED

In other accidents, a 15-year-old Benton Harbor boy was cited for reckless driving, not having an operator's license and leaving the scene of a property damage accident after the auto he was driving struck two gasoline pumps at the Hospital Gulf station, 922 Pipestone street about 8:15 p.m., police said. No one was reported hurt.

Police reported that about 3:20 a.m. today, a car operated by Melba Joyce Strickland, 23, of 938 Edgemoor avenue, Benton Harbor, skidded on Territorial road near Winans and broke an Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. pole. No injuries were reported, police said, adding that the driver was cited for careless driving.

The board also approved a request from Hazen Harner, county drain commissioner, to pay 6 1/2 per cent of the $3,000 cost of cleaning the Mud Hollow drain southeast of the Gallen-Buchanan and Boyle Lake roads. The remainder of the cost will be divided among Bertrand, Buchanan and Galien townships and the county road commission.

Escapee Back In Custody

Gives Up After Eluding St. Joe Police All Night

Twenty-year-old Donald Ross Shull, who snatched an officer's pistol and fled the St. Joseph police station about 10:45 Tuesday night, turned himself in as soon as he got home shortly after noon Wednesday.

Shull, of route 3, box 186, Eaman road, Benton Harbor, was arraigned before St. Joseph Municipal Judge Maurice A. Weber on charges of felonious assault, larceny from a person and the misdemeanor count of reckless driving.

He pleaded innocent to the driving charge and demanded examination of the two felony counts. Judge Weber set all of the actions for 11 a.m. Oct. 25.

A total bond of $8,100 on the three charges was not posted. Furnishing bond would not have released Shull from the county jail where he is held because Parole Officer Charles Bazata has a hold on the youth.

Donald Ray Collins of 1309 Hurd street, Benton Harbor, whose auto was involved in a high speed chase leading to Shull's arrest, is also to be charged with reckless driving, according to St. Joseph police. They charged Shull and Collins switched seats in the car during the chase.

SERVED TIME

Shull has been in Bazata's custody some eight months since being released from prison where he served time for breaking and entering a grocery store.

Shull was returned to St. Joseph police headquarters shortly after noon Wednesday. Officers picked him up at his home after he called Bazata and told him he was ready to turn himself in.

The youth said he had just gotten home after spending a night eluding police.

Shull said he fled east across Main street after snatching Officer John Krieger's pistol and holding him and Sgt. Don Ives at bay with it.

STOOD IN RIVER

"I ran between the houses down to the river," the youth said. At one point, he stood waist deep in the river while policemen from several area agencies were within six or seven feet.

Det. Lt. Tom Cooper said Shull must have been in the water behind Home Builders Lumber Co. when the policemen passed so near.

"It was real dark," said Shull, "and their flashlights didn't show up on the water very well."

After the policemen left, Shull moved west along the south bank of the river to the C&O Railroad bridge where he crossed "I followed the beach up (north) to where it's close to my house and then went home. I called the police as soon as I got there."

DENIES DRIVING

The youth denied he was driving the auto he was in while officer Krieger was pursuing it northwest of Benton Harbor. "I didn't get in the front seat until after we parked at that house," he said.

Krieger said he started chasing the auto after he thought he saw the driver holding a beer bottle. He had Shull in the report room on the first floor of the police station while he wrote his report of the incident.

The phone rang nearby and Krieger answered it. It was while he was reaching for the phone that Shull snatched the pistol from its holster, warned the officers to stay away and then fled.

Discusses Role Of MSU Trustee

Merriman Campaigns Here For Re-Election

Frank Merriman, Republican candidate for reelection to the Michigan State University board of trustees, believes his job should be limited to policy, not day-by-day administration.

The farm leader from Deckerville carried his campaign into Berrien county yesterday, along with his opinion that MSU has competent young administrators under a top-flight veteran president.

He said the problem is that too many day-by-day administration decisions are being made by the board of trustees at MSU.

Commenting only briefly on partisan politics, Merriman said in Benton Harbor that he believes in two-party politics, but does not believe one party should dominate the MSU policy board. He said the board now includes six Democrats and two Republicans. He added that a strong Democratic showing in November could leave the board with only one Republican.

Merriman is seeking reelection to the post he has held since 1960. Two board seats are to be filled in November's election. Terms are for eight years.

PRaises DR. HANNAH

To Merriman, MSU has advanced to its role as one of the nation's education leaders, mainly because of its president, Dr. John Hannah, now rounding out his 25th year at the helm.

He said the board of trustees has direct or indirect supervision over the spending of about $145 million each year. This, he said, includes a current budget of about $48 million, allotted from the State Legislature. It also includes all grants and gifts and bonding programs for construction.

He said the school is third largest in the Big Ten, with about 38,000 students on the East Lansing campus. About 2,500 others attend the MSU Oakland campus, Merriman said.

Looking to the future, Merriman termed "reasonably bright" the prospects of a future four-year medical school for MSU. The new two-year modified medical program has just begun.

MEDICAL SCHOOL

Merriman quickly emphasized that a four-year medical school, would not mean siphoning of funds from the two existing medical schools in the state, at the University of Michigan and Wayne State University.

If its goal of an MSU medical school, he said, is based on the need for additional doctors and medical facilities, especially in smaller communities. He noted that many small communities in Michigan now have no medical facilities.

Merriman, 46, was reminded of MSU's advancement into the ranks of a "prestige school" when he took a People to People tour in Europe and Great Britain about three years ago, he commented yesterday.

Among the recent advances, he said, are four or five building complexes, each housing dormitories, classrooms and dining facilities. In this way, he noted, students using the dormi-

Rash Of Incidents In B.H.

Worried School, City Officials Map Program

Alarmed school and municipal officials last night began developing an action program to halt a wave of attacks on children in the Benton Harbor school district.

Greatest concern was shown for the area of Benton Harbor junior high school and Calvin Britain school where some 10 children have been attacked since school opened.

Just four hours before the officials met, three white girls, students at junior high, had been jumped and kicked by Negro girls, believed to be Calvin Britain elementary students. The incident was broken up by junior high teachers.

Superintendent Albert Johnson said parents have expressed such fear for the safety of their children that some have prohibited them from going to the public library. Families also are looking for homes away from troubled areas.

FOUR-POINT PLAN

The group of 16 officials settled on four recommendations after discussing many suggestions in a meeting at Benton Harbor city hall:

1. Contact PTAs on the formation of block parent groups to provide havens of safety for children going to or from school. A successful block parent system is now operating in the Seely McCord area which has been free of incidents.

2. Expand the Community School program to occupy youngsters with wholesome recreation.

3. Identify trouble makers for a series of conferences with parents. Increase disciplinary measures in cooperation with juvenile court.

4. Seek assistance from the Department of Social Services for discussions on the problems in homes requesting ADC assistance where there is no father in the house.

POLICE COOPERATION

Benton Township Police Chief Joe Sieber and Benton Harbor City Manager Don Stewart pledged full cooperation of their police departments.

Charles Gray, district attendance officer, said the Community Schools program based at Bard school seems a great success in its brief existence. Expansion to Calvin Britain school was urged as soon as possible.

A study will be made on the rescheduling of class hours at some schools to avoid pouring large concentrations of students on the streets at the same time, according to Robert Payne, assistant superintendent for personnel.

Officials stressed that hooliganism involves girls as well as boys. Mayor Wilbert Smith reported of another fight on the east side involving all girls.

Last night's meeting originated from an earlier conference between the mayor and Supt. Johnson.

Attending the meeting were Johnson, Payne, Smith, Gray, Stewart, Sieber, Benton Supervisor Ray Wilder, Keith Henning, junior high principal; Norman Whitley, junior high assistant principal; Robin Campbell, Calvin Britain principal; Paul Foss, Bard principal; George Westfield, juvenile officer; George Welch, co-chairman of the Community Relations Advisory Board; Kenneth Oettle and Wally Versaw of the Department of Social Services, and Gordon McKnight, manager of community affairs at Whirlpool corporation.

Praises Local MSU Center

Candidate Views Improvements

A member of Michigan State University's board of trustees voiced pleasure yesterday at what he observed in the MSU Continuing Education center, 224 Pipestone street, Benton Harbor.

Frank Merriman of Deckerville, a Republican candidate for reelection to the MSU board, left his Berrien county campaign trail to inspect the center.

"I was pleased to see the recent major improvements in the facility as well as the programs under the direction of Dr. A.S. Mowery, who was recently appointed director of the center," Merriman commented.

Merriman termed the center and its educational effect on southwest Michigan part of MSU's obligation to the people of the state. He said the MSU board of trustees is deeply interested in centers, such as

Report Theft, Swindle At Benton Shops

Gus Raschke, operator of the Trading post, 1625 Territorial road, Benton township, reported a radio-recorder player combination, valued at $35 was stolen from his store yesterday, according to township police.

A quick chance artist was a clerk at Dawn's Donuts, M-139, Benton township, out of $150 according to township police. Employees at the store said the man was driving a late model yellow Cadillac.

The one on Pipestone street.

Also praised was the recent joining of hands with Western Michigan university, which now shares the center. Merriman also met with Stephen Nichols, Jr., WMU area director at the center, and, with Mowery, reviewed plans for proposed joint programs.

Garbage Pick-Up Approved

Contract Is Let To Barringer In South Haven

SOUTH HAVEN — City councilmen nearly failed to solve the vexing problem of city garbage collection in another special meeting yesterday afternoon.

Members finally awarded a new contract to John Barringer of South Haven for the next two years after voting twice on the same motion.

Barringer was the lowest qualified bidder among three bids submitted for garbage removal at the curb. His bid was $31,000 a year for curb pick-up and $47,000 at the back door.

The council first voted three to two against a motion by Alderman Alfred (Bud) Baars to accept Barringer's bid.

Mayor Glenn Sperry and Alderman William McDonald said they voted against the motion because they were not happy with the way in which Barringer has been violating city ordinances and refusing to clean up some real estate he owns at the south end of town. Merton Jones said he voted against the motion because he thought curb service would create "one glorious mess" with trash barrels stacked daily along city curbs.

The only other two aldermen in attendance, Baars and Donald McGuire, voted in favor of the motion. McGuire said he felt the council had no choice but to accept the lowest qualified bid.

After a lengthy discussion, members began to fear having to reject bids for a third time. Jones and McDonald finally said they would change their vote, Baars put the motion back on the floor, and it carried four to one. Sperry voted against it. The new contract will contain a clause that will allow the council to ask Barringer to return if the attempt at curb service does not work out. Mayor Sperry warned, however, that a tax increase will probably be necessary to pay the additional cost if a change in service is made.

Barringer said he would agree to offer special back door pick-up service for individual residents at a nominal fee. The new contract goes into effect Nov. 1.

$1,129,689 Budget Is Approved

River Valley Board Action

SAWYER—An estimated 1966-67 school year budget of $1,129,689 was approved by the River Valley board of education at a special budget meeting last night. The figure represents an increase of $227,007 over the last budget.

Supt. Harold Sauser said the increase is due to higher teacher salaries, the hiring of five additional teachers, expanded curriculum and resultant supplies, operation and maintenance of the new high school plus furniture and equipment for the new school.

The increase will be financed by an increase of 5.45 operational millage voted last winter and additional federal and state aid. The millage increase will bring in an additional $159,000, according to the budget report.

The report indicated that all income resources open to the school district will bring in $1,148,974, about $20,000 more than the estimated budget proposes to spend. This $20,000 will be used to cover any unforeseen expenditures.

In all, school taxes will bring in $514,481 through a 21 mill levy. This levy is broken down as follows: 9.05 allocated, 8.45 voted operational (including the 5.45 voted increase), 4 mills for 1956 debt retirement fund and 3.1 mills for 1964 debt retirement. This millage breakdown, announced Aug. 22, is a one mill reduction from the year before.

In other business last night the board awarded Livesay and Krieger, plumbing contractors from Sawyer, a $1,680 contract to install a sprinkler system for the football and baseball fields at the new high school. Livesay and Krieger were lowest of three firms bidding.

Rural Gobles Man Killed In House Trailer Blaze

GOBLES—A rural Gobles man burned to death in a house trailer fire last night, four miles northeast of Gobles.

Van Buren Sheriff Richard Stump identified the victim as Clarence Esseltine, 53, of route 2, Gobles.

Stump said Esseltine resided in a house trailer just off 31st street north of the Gobles-Kendall road. The fire was discovered about 9:45 p.m. by a neighbor, Joseph Champion, who saw the fire from his home.

Champion told his wife to call the fire department and he went to the scene of the fire to see if he could assist.

Gobles firemen, who responded to the alarm, said that when they arrived, flames were coming through the roof and out the door. They said the fire was most intense in the area of the trailer occupied by the oil stove. Police theorized the fire started at or near the heater.

BODY FOUND

When the fire was extinguished Esseltine's body was found in the ashes.

Dr. Fred Boothby of Lawrence, deputy medical examiner, was summoned to the scene and released the body to the Robins funeral home at Gobles.

Sheriff Stump said Esseltine lived alone. He was employed by the Clifton Engineering company of Three Rivers and had been working in the Paw Paw area on gas and electrical installations.

Esseltine was born Oct. 23, 1910. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Claress Esseltine of Plainville; a son, Douglas of Oshtemo; three brothers and three sisters.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete this morning.

Rev. Fanger Hits Lack Of Interest

Lacota Facility 'Serving Need But Not Well'

SOUTH HAVEN — The Grand Junction-South Haven Migrant committee has planned to appeal to area churches for 100 per cent financial cooperation to support the summer migrant ministry, committee chairman the Rev. Grant Fanger said yesterday.

The Rev. Fanger, pastor of the First Baptist church of South Haven, said committee members have agreed to seek complete church support instead of relying on state aid to operate the Lacota Day Care Center and related field work, among the migrant farm workers.

He said last year's total budget was about $6,000, of which the churches contributed only $1,092. The rest came from the State Department of Welfare and voluntary donations.

The pastor warned that if the churches cannot support the program, the committee is prepared to go exclusively into field work and either discontinue the day care center or leave its operation up to the state.

"We feel that if the church is going to take credit for supporting the migrant ministry, it should finance the ministry," the Rev. Fanger said. He pointed out that state law prohibits any religious teaching in the day care center while it is being helped with state funds.

"LAW JUST, BUT..."

"I want to make it clear that we are not knocking this law," the Rev. Fanger said. "We feel it is a just law. However we feel churches might be more willing to support this work if we can have the freedom to teach religion."

He added that the committee is not closing the door completely on state aid. It is merely trying to increase the response from area churches for this branch of the ministry, and if only partially successful, may call for state assistance to keep the program going, the pastor added.

The Lacota Day Care Center has become a gathering place for area migrant children and their parents since it was established at Lacota some 32 years ago. The main building on Phoenix road was erected in 1932 by the Quakers and the committee purchased a nearby structure, the former brewery of the old Kamms Beer Co., about two years ago. A debt of $1,400 is still outstanding.

30 PER YEAR

Every summer an estimated 30 children between the ages of two and six are cared for at the center by a staff of volunteer helpers. The children stay at the center from 6:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. and are provided meals, education and arts and crafts.

In conjunction with this, a staff of field workers function like Peace Corpsmen daily among the adults on the farms. They assume a "pastoral relationship," the Rev. Fanger said, "doing what they can to help and conducting Bible classes."

This past summer the Tri-County Health department's van began parking at the Lacota center every Wednesday night to provide free medical service through a federal grant. The migrants were slow to respond to the clinic, but by the end of the season were showing up in small numbers.

The migrant committee was originally composed of pastors and laymen from each church in the South Haven-Grand Junction area, although interest has been poor in recent years, the Rev. Fanger said.

BAARS — 54, 437 North Shore drive, will be completing a four-year term. The Republican member of the council gained a reputation as a stickler for fairness and a battler for the rules set by the city charter.

FACED SPERRY

In 1965 he ran against Democrat Sperry for the mayor's job, was defeated but retained his seat on the council.

Baars served for four years as South Haven's last justice of the peace before the office of municipal judge was established by the charter. He has also served as a member of the local airport board for many years.

He is owner and operator of Baars Printing Co. and partner with his wife, Marianne, in the Bon Franklin store here.

SEEKS PEARS SEAT

Democrat Groenke Hopes To Help Cure Farm Problems

By BILL RUMBLER
South Berrien Bureau

BARODA — The farmer and his constant problem—prices—is the chief tenet of the political philosophy and the main plank in the platform of Laurel Groenke, Baroda farmer and Democratic nominee to challenge incumbent Don Pears of Buchanan in the 43rd legislative district.

As both a dairy farmer and fruit grower, Groenke feels he is in the ideal position to understand the needs of farmers in the 43rd district, which includes the city of St. Joseph, southern Berrien county and several townships in central and eastern Cass county.

He has lived on a farm in the Baroda area all his life and his family name goes back over a hundred years in the town. His farm of 79 acres is located on Singer Lake road east of town.

In 1950 and '52 he was an unsuccessful candidate for sheriff and in 1954 and '56 lost elections for Oronoko township supervisor.

"The accomplishments of the 73rd legislature are something to be proud of," Groenke said, starting off his discussion of politics. "I'd like to help them carry on where they left off. I can't recall when a legislative body gave the farmer so much," he added, referring to the elimination of personal property taxes for farmers.

By carrying on, Groenke means continuing to help the farmer, this time with the "establishment of a minimum wage." This would take the form of setting a minimum market price for all farm goods, he explained.

The minimum price would be the equivalent to the "cost" price in industry and would guarantee the farmer at least a break-even season.

He pointed to the market prices in the latest edition of Prairie Farmer magazine. Of all farm products, only hogs were listed as selling at parity (the cost to the farmer of raising them and transporting them to market.)

"It's a shame. It ought not to be. It's poor business. It would bankrupt any business," he stated. The minimum price he feels is the best way to end the situation where the farmer now makes just enough to pay taxes and interest.

He said he does not think price subsidies are the answer to the farmer's problem because they often do not make up the "cost" price of his products.

Another plank in his platform are some aspects of government spending he would investigate if he were sent to Lansing. "I don't think the taxpayer is getting a proper return for his investment," he stated, citing an example of a child's yearly education costing $50 in the 1940s but $500 now.

"Are we getting an education 10 times better?" he asked. Groenke also feels services to taxpayers ought to have improved, but have not, as assessed valuation increased over the years in addition to the number of persons paying taxes.

He proposed taking a long, hard look into the welfare situation to see how many persons on the rolls can be educated and retrained.

A change in the taxation procedures would help the farmer, he feels. He explained that the tax assessor might be allowed to be a little lenient in areas where farmers haven't been able to make ends meet for several years.

As far as some sort of compensation for small businesses located along the Indiana border burdened with a high sales tax compared with that of Indiana, Groenke said, "I would like to help but I don't know how it could be done."

Yet another plank in the Groenke platform is to strengthen the "sacred spirit of democracy." The tremendous increase in crime and the continuing civil strife show serious weaknesses in this spirit today, he commented. "I had never heard of anybody burning an American flag until this year."

Groenke lives on his farm with his wife Winifred, his son Billy, 16, and his mother Mary, who is 89 years old. Another son, Lonnie, lives nearby. He is married and has two children.

Groenke is a member of the Evangelical United Brethren church of Berrien Springs. He once taught in a rural Three Oaks school and once was a committeeman for the local Farmer's Home administration.

Baars Won't Seek South Haven Seat

Bowing Out At End Of Present Term

SOUTH HAVEN — Alfred (Bud) Baars yesterday said he will not seek re-election as Third ward alderman in city elections next spring.

Baars is the first of four council members whose terms expire next April to make his intentions known.

Terms also expire for Mayor Glenn Sperry, and aldermen Merton Jones, William McDonald and Irving Tucker. Tucker, who was appointed to fill a vacancy, will have to seek re-election to a two-year term.

Baars, 54, 437 North Shore drive, will be completing a four-year term. The Republican member of the council gained a reputation as a stickler for fairness and a battler for the rules set by the city charter.

FACED SPERRY

In 1965 he ran against Democrat Sperry for the mayor's job, was defeated but retained his seat on the council.

Baars served for four years as South Haven's last justice of the peace before the office of municipal judge was established by the charter. He has also served as a member of the local airport board for many years.

He is owner and operator of Baars Printing Co. and partner with his wife, Marianne, in the Bon Franklin store here.

Processors Fight New Cherry Plan

Gives Growers Market Control

WASHINGTON (AP)—A proposal to permit issuance of marketing orders for cherries for canning or freezing without the presently required approval of the processors was urged today by some witnesses, but was opposed by a canners association counsel.

Paul A. Nicholson, an Agriculture Department official, recommended passage of the bill at a hearing before a House Agriculture subcommittee. "We are not aware of any compelling reason for providing cherry processors with authority to decide whether or not the marketing order may be established for cherries for canning or freezing," he said.

Berkeley L. Freeman, secretary-manager of the Great Lakes Marketing Cooperative, supported the bill. "The danger to growers if market order legislation is not available to them is real and present," he said.

Robert N. Hamon of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, Harry L. Graham, legislative representative of the National Grange, and the bill's author, Rep. Joseph P. Viorito, D-Pa., presented similar arguments.

However, Edward Dunkelberger, counsel for the National Canners Association, opposed the bill. "The canning industry, he said, believes a marketing order for cherries should become effective only if both the growers and the processors can be persuaded to impose federal controls in the interest of the industry."
